HOW THIS LEARNER WORKBOOK IS COMPILED

This unit standard requires learners to reflect on the strengths and weaknesses of themselves and their teams in order to manage team performance.

The qualifying learner is capable of:

- ◆ Understanding him/herself as worker in a specific position.
- ◆ Identifying own role in an organisation.
- ◆ Understanding the dynamics within a specific group.
- ◆ Using a variety of strategies to deal with potential conflict in a team or group.
- ◆ Developing a plan of action to enhance team performance.

You have to study the content and guidelines given in your learner reference guide to complete this workbook.

Remember that this completed workbook must be handed in as it will form part of your formative assessment and will play a role in awarding you the required 05 credits that are to be achieved upon completion of this module.

Write neatly and legibly and ensure that you do not simply copy the information contained in the learner reference guide into your workbook. Give your own opinion and ideas where applicable and write the answers in your own words to indicate your level of understanding and learning.

Good luck with the completion of this workbook.

LEARNING UNIT 1

Development

LEARNING OUTCOMES

A learning credited with this unit will be able to:

- ♦ Describe strengths and weaknesses in the current job role as seen against current job role requirements.
- ♦ Describe career aspirations.
- ♦ Give the organisation, describe types of development activities/programs available and explain the advantages/disadvantages of these.
- ♦ Identify current competence and potential areas for development in conjunction with the line manager and design a development plan.
- ♦ Given the identified training needs, design a development plan to meet those needs, (taking available resources into account) and identify and analyse internal/external factors that may impact on the plan.
- ♦ Identify alternative areas for self-development that may not be work related and describe how the principles for preparing a development plan apply.
- ♦ Given the development plan. Identify priorities, objectives and time frames that are consistent with achievement of relevant qualifications or in-house development programs in your organisation.
- ♦ Agree with management on time and resources needed to achieve objectives.

LEARNER ACTIVITY 1

MULTIPLE QUESTIONS - Choose one (1) or more of the following:

1. How would you identify your strengths?
 - [A] Ask your colleagues to list your strengths and to tell you why they regard them as strengths
 - [B] Make a list of the things you hate doing and how they influence your quality of work performance
 - [C] Look for the common ground between your views and those of your colleagues
 - [D] List the things you find difficult when performing your duties and which prevent you from getting ahead in your career.

1. List 3 (three) responsibilities of a Line Manager

- ♦ The manager is the key to the success of a team. It is a manager's responsibility to get the best out of their staff.
- ♦ It is therefore vital that managers implement strategies to improve the performance competence of their staff. Staff training needs to be a matter of the highest priority with successful managers.
- ♦ Managers must be in touch with the needs of their staff and take into account the many psychological and emotional factors which impact on an individual's performance.
- ♦ It is imperative that good managers make allowance for these factors when considering the performance management of staff.
- ♦ In short, every team is made up of individuals with a specific role or task. The manager's role and responsibility is to mould these individuals into a cohesive, successful unit through effective training and development with the aim of achieving company goals and objectives.

2. When you are dissatisfied with something in the workplace, you have four choices you can make. Name these 4 (four) choices:

- ♦ put up with things
- ♦ leave
- ♦ get others to change
- ♦ change yourself

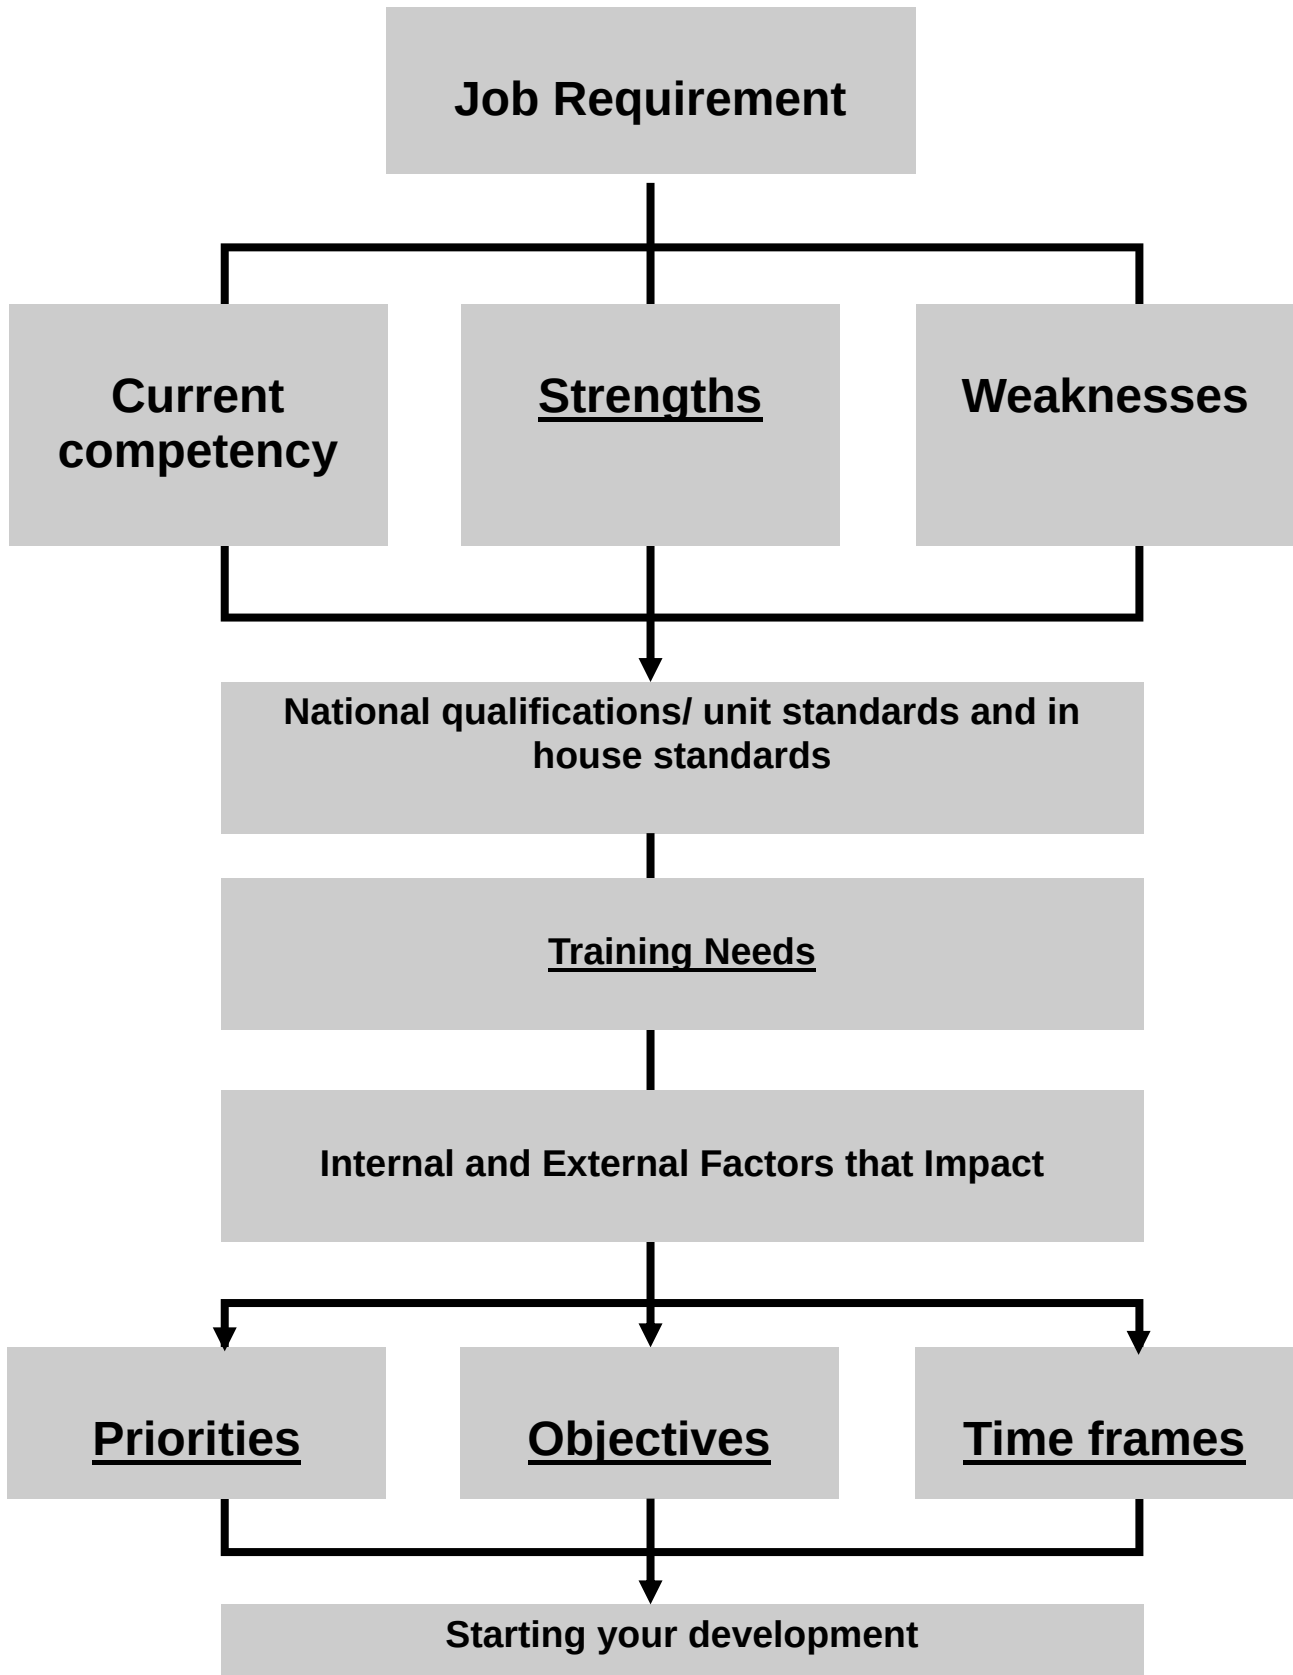

3. Name 2 (two) guidelines which you can follow when choosing to change yourself through self development

- ♦ Write down your goal, in a measurable form if you can, and give yourself a deadline.
- ♦ Armed with some goals, set about designing yourself a learning programme and finding the appropriate resources. This depends on what you want to learn.
- ♦ Learning is a social affair – you need feedback, encouragement and the help of friends to pinpoint your goals, devise your learning programmes and to keep you going. Encourage this support.
- ♦ Commit to keep on with your learning programme. "Stickability" and perseverance – whatever you choose to call it.
- ♦ Assess yourself against your goals. How well are you doing? If you set lots of learning sub-goals, then these make good points at which to test yourself. This point takes you back to the first. Testing yourself leaves you feeling satisfied – in which case you stop learning – or dissatisfied, in which case you carry on, heading for the next target.

LEARNING UNIT 2

Role within an organization

LEARNING OUTCOMES

A learning credited with this unit will be able to:

- ♦ Define an organogram.
- ♦ Distinguish between the different types organograms.
- ♦ Identify a specific position within an organization on an organizational chart.
- ♦ Define and explain roles and responsibilities within an organizational organogram.
- ♦ Identify the expectation of an organization based on a functional position.
- ♦ Monitor performance of individuals within an organization.
- ♦ Define company values and ethics.
- ♦ Explain the impact of an code of ethics on the decision made by employees.

LEARNER ACTIVITY 1 (page 31)

1. Define “Organogram”

An organizational chart (often called organization chart or organogram (me) or organogram (me)) is a diagram that shows the structure of an organization and the relationships and relative ranks of its parts and positions/jobs. The term is also used for similar diagrams, for example ones showing the different elements of a field of knowledge or a group of languages.

2. An organizational chart of a company usually shows the managers and sub-workers who make up an organization. It also shows the relationships between the organization's staff members. Discuss the following:

- ♦ Line: Direct relationship between superior and subordinate.
- ♦ Lateral: Relationship between different departments on the same hierarchical level.
- ♦ Staff: Relationship between a managerial assistant and other areas. The assistant will be able to offer advice to a line manager. However, they have no authority over the line manager actions.
- ♦ Functional: Relationships between specialist positions and other areas. The specialist will normally have authority to insist that a line manager implements any of their instructions.

3. Name 3 (three) different types of organization charts:

- ♦ Hierarchical
- ♦ Matrix
- ♦ Flat

4. Why is it important to have an up-to-date list of duties available for your employees? (page 33)

- ♦ Allocate the right tasks to the right people.
- ♦ Can get the acceptance and agreement from the people who have to do the work
- ♦ Can build an effective team that supports the results to be achieved.
- ♦ Ensure work is not duplicated
- ♦ Identify what the staff member has to do and what is expected of him/her. Clearly outline areas of responsibility (from the job description).
- ♦ Inform staff to what level they can make decisions.
- ♦ Ensure that the job is seen to be both interesting and worthwhile.
- ♦ S/he must also know what his/her relation to the other workers is and to what degree co-operation and interaction can take place.

5. Discuss 3 (three) suggestions to help you establish and enforce the boundaries of the employer/employee relationship at a typical site: (page 35)

- ♦ Define the relationship and job position: The employer/employee relationship should be well-defined from the outset and the parameters understood by all parties. Some call it "defining the pecking order" or "establishing the food chain." Whatever colorful term you use it all boils down to this: You can be their boss or you can be their buddy. You can not be both.
- ♦ Establish and adhere to company policies and workplace procedures: It's a good idea to have published policies concerning every aspect of the site, including employee behavior and performance expectations. By its very nature the employer/employee relationship is prone to favoritism. Managers can't help but favor those employees who work harder, longer, and faster, but when it comes to adhering to company policies and procedures, there should be no preferential treatment of favored employees. Every employee/site should receive a copy of the company policies and procedure. It should state that they have read, understand, and agree with it. It should also be signed by each employee.
- ♦ The Bottom Line: Treat everyone the same. It does not matter if the employee is a vice president or a janitor; everyone in the company should be treated the same when it comes to adhering to company policies and performance expectations.
- ♦ It's not personal, it's just business: This is what the movie bad guys say to one another right before the shooting starts. "Hey, Paulie, it's not personal. It's just business." BANG!! BANG!! This is the dating equivalent of saying, "It's not you, it's me." These kinds of statements are not going to make anyone feel better when they are getting dumped or fired.

LEARNER ACTIVITY 2

1. Discuss the differences between “conflict” and “competition” (page 46)

"Competition" usually brings out the best in people, as they strive to be top in their field, whether in sport, community affairs, politics or work. In fact, fair and friendly competition often leads to new sporting achievements, scientific inventions or outstanding effort in solving a community problem. When competition becomes unfriendly or bitter, though, conflict can begin - and this can bring out the worst in people.

2. The handling of conflict requires awareness of its various development stages. One of these stages is “PRE-CONFLICT”. Name the other 8 stages of conflict.

[A] Pre-conflict

- ♦ Confrontation
- ♦ Crisis
- ♦ Outcome
- ♦ Post-conflict
- ♦ Communication channels opened
- ♦ Mutual understanding
- ♦ Finding solutions
- ♦ Agreement

3. What can you do as Speakers, the message senders, to improve your communication skills? (page 50)

- ♦ Know what you mean and express it clearly
- ♦ Resist the temptation to make personal attacks and accuse your opponents
- ♦ Use de-escalatory language, by replacing accusatory “you” statements with less provocative “I” statements. Such as “I feel as if I am not being understood” instead of “You are stupid if you do not understand me”.

4. Name 4 (four) resolution strategies to solve conflict:(page 50)

- ♦ The very early stages of a conflict till the violence outburst,
- ♦ More control over the outcomes till lose of control,
- ♦ More sustainable solution till very unstable one,
- ♦ More satisfaction with the outcome till less satisfaction,
- ♦ Improved or at least not damaged relationships till broken relationships.

LEARNING UNIT 4

Group dynamics

LEARNING OUTCOMES

A learning credited with this unit will be able to:

- ♦ Define group dynamics.
- ♦ Set goals for a group to improve performance.
- ♦ Develop a plan of action to achieve group goals.
- ♦ Use a SWOT analyses to identify strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats within a group.
- ♦ Explain the importance of consultation.
- ♦ Explain the factors of effective planning in order to amend and monitor a plan.

LEARNER ACTIVITY 1

1. Define “Group Dynamics” (page61)

A group of people working in the same room, or even on a common project, does not necessarily invoke the group process. If the group is managed in a totally autocratic manner, there may be little opportunity for interaction relating to the work; if there is fractioning within the group, the process may never evolve. On the other hand, the group process may be utilized by normally distant individuals working on different projects.

2. A characteristic of informal groups is group cohesiveness - the force that holds a group together. Group cohesiveness varies widely based on the following factors: (page 61)

- ♦ size of the group
- ♦ dependence of members upon the group
- ♦ achievement of goals
- ♦ status of the group and
- ♦ management demands and pressures.

3. Explain “SWOT Analysis” (page 62)

SWOT Analysis is a strategic planning method used to evaluate the Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities, and Threats involved in a project or in groups.

It involves specifying the objective of the group and identifying the internal and external factors that are favorable and unfavorable to achieving that objective.

4. In a range of planning, alternatives need to be considered in order to make insightful, proactive decisions. What decisions are made in advance? (page 64)

- ♦ what will be done,
- ♦ why it will be done,
- ♦ under what conditions it will be done,
- ♦ how it will be accomplished.

5. What is the difference between “Short term” and “Long term” planning? (page 65)

Short Term:

Short term planning is the planning of short range activities necessary to accomplish long term objectives. These types of objectives can be met almost immediately by implementing and making changes.

Long Term:

Long term planning involves looking ahead as far as possible In order to formulate end results. Once you know the long term objectives charting medium/short term planning becomes simplified.
