

LEARNER GUIDE

Unit Standard Title: IDENTIFY, HANDLE AND DEFUSE SECURITY RELATED CONFLICT.

Unit Standard No: 11505

Unit Standard Credits: 12

NQF Level: 4

In terms of the Copyright Act 1978:

No part of this manual may be reproduced or translated in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical including photocopying, recording or by an information storage and retrieval system without the express permission from TDA.

COPYRIGHT: TRAINING DYNAMICS AFRICA

First edition 2008

Publications disclaimer

Neither the authors nor the SETA can accept any responsibility for any legal or any other consequences, which may arise directly or indirectly as a result of the use or adaptation of or reliance upon any of the content of this material.

This material has been compiled based on the UNIT STANDARD 11505 IDENTIFY, HANDLE AND DEUSE SECURITY RELATED CONFLICT.

The program has been accredited by SASSETA in the Republic of South Africa.

Material compiled by:

Training Dynamics Africa

PROGRAM GUIDE	5-10
1. Introduction	5
2. Purpose of this learning program	5
3. Standards and qualifications	5
4. Assessments	6
5. Range statements	6
6. The learning guide	6
7. Learning assumed to be in place	7
8. Training	9
9. Preparation of summative assessment	10
10. Roles and responsibilities	10
Study unit 1: Identify conflict	11-22
1. Definition	13
2. Causes of conflict	13
3. Power	14
4. Identify signs of conflict	15
5. The differences between “competition” and “conflict”	15
6. Types of conflict	16
7. Stages of conflict	16
8. Peoples response to conflict	19
Study unit 2: Manage conflict	23-38
1. Conflict management style	25
2. Scenarios where a conflict management style is the most effective	26
3. Conflicts life cycle	27
4. Violence	28
5. Resolution strategies to solve conflicts	29
6. Negative feelings before or during conflict	34
7. Positive feelings after proper handling of conflict	34
8. Behaviors which help in managing conflict	34
9. Steps that can be taken to handle conflict	36
Study unit 3: Workplace procedures	39-52
1. Introduction	41
2. Deal with difficult people	42

3.	Handling angry clients	43
4.	Deal with alcoholics on site	44
5.	The use of force in the process of removing a person from site	45
6.	Threat assessment	45
7.	Responses based on the threat assessment	47
8.	Communication skills	49
9.	Physical restraining techniques	50

Study unit 4: Report writing	53-67
-------------------------------------	--------------

1.	Introduction	55
2.	Forms of reporting	55
3.	Requirements for good reporting	56
4.	Guidelines regarding writing a report	61
5.	Composition of a report	61
6.	Feedback	64
	Example of a report	65

Glossary of Terms (Educational terms)	69-70
--	--------------

Bibliography	71
---------------------	-----------

Unit standard 11505: Identify, Handle and Defuse Security Related Conflict	73-76
---	--------------

1. Introduction

This learning program is part of a complete qualification. For more details concerning the complete qualification please contact your service provider or alternatively the office of the SASSETA

2. Purpose of this learning program

This unit standard is for personnel to identify, handle and defuse security related conflict between members of the public and security personnel with minimum use of force in the workplace.

Benefit for society of this unit standard is that the person who completes this will contribute to safety in society.

A person credited with this unit standard will be able to:

- Identify conflict situations.
- Handle and defuse conflict situation.
- Provide feedback on conflict situation.

2.1 Target group

This program is compiled for the following target group:

- Security members
- South African Defense Force members
- South African Police Force members
- Correctional Services
- Individuals who wishes to complete the NQF level 3 National Certificate in security practices.

3. Standards and qualifications

It is important that you as the learner understand and realize that this training program is not presented in isolation, but that it was developed based upon nationally recognized standards known as unit standards.

REMEMBER.....

Unit standards are the “building blocks” of qualifications. All qualifications are plotted on the National Qualifications Framework (NQF).

Unit standards comprises of outcomes. An outcome is a statement that describes the required competency that must be demonstrated by the learner on successful completion of a training intervention.

4. Assessments

In order to assess whether a learner can actually demonstrate the desired outcomes, assessment criteria are included in the unit standard. Each outcome has its own set of assessment criteria.

REMEMBER.....

The assessment criteria describe the evidence that is needed that will show that the learner has demonstrated the outcome correctly.

Kindly refer to the unit standard attached hereto for the assessment criteria.

It is of utmost importance that the learner fully understands the assessment criteria as listed in the unit standard, as it is the only way in which the learner will know what he will be assessed against.

The final or summative assessment is the most important aspect of this training program. It is during this process that the learner will be declared competent or not yet competent.

The learner will know exactly how he will be assessed, and when and where he will be assessed. All of these details must be obtained from the training provider where the learner enrolled for his program.

5. Range statements

REMEMBER.....

Also included in the unit standard are the range statements in support of the assessment criteria.

The range statements indicate detailed requirements of the assessment criteria.

6. The learning guide

The learner guide is included in this material under various learning units. The learner guide has been designed in such a manner that the learner is guided in a logical way through the learning material and requirements of the unit standard.

On completion of this skill program, the learner will be assessed against the assessment criteria as stipulated in the unit standard.

Each of the modules consists of learner outcomes to be achieved during training and development interventions, work related experience or at your own time. The learner outcomes will enable you to achieve the required level of confidence and competence in order to undergo the summative (final evaluations) assessment.

The learner needs to assess his own knowledge and skill throughout the training process by completing the learner workbook. With the completion of the workbook you start collecting evidence to proof your competence. The learner workbook will be assessed (FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT)

TAKE NOTE

The learner guide will remain the property of the learner once the LEARNING PROGRAM has been completed.

TAKE NOTE

- The best results will be obtained if you start with Study Unit 1 in the Learner Guide, and work your way through it, study unit by study unit.
- All learning outcomes are vital and must be studied (and exercised for all practical requirements) thoroughly to ensure that enough evidence for all specific outcomes is generated.

7. Learning assumed to be in place

It is assumed that a learner which registers for this program have completed a program in communication at NQF Level 3 or equivalent.

It is imperative to understand that this program are only one of the building blocks to complete Skills program 1. The complete list of unit standards for Skills program appears on the next page.

7.1 Security program matrix

SKILLS PROGRAM 1: SASSETA E				Patrol Security officer/Grade E
244177	Conduct a security patrol in area of responsibility	Level 3	7 Credits
244184	Apply legal aspects in a security environment	Level 3	8 Credits
244176	Use security equipment	Level 2	2 Credits
244179	Handle complaints and problems	Level 3	6 Credits
244181	Perform hand over and take over responsibilities	Level 3	2 Credits
244182	Give evidence in court	Level 3	4 Credits
12484	Perform basic fire fighting	Level 2	4 Credits
116534	Carry out basic first aid treatment in the work-place	Level 3	2 Credits
SKILLS PROGRAM 2: SASSETA D				Access control officer/Grade D
244189	Conduct access and egress control	Level 4	7 Credits
242825	Conduct evacuations and emergency drills	Level 4	4 Credits
11505	Identify, handle and defuse security related conflict	Level 4	12 Credits
117705	Demonstrate knowledge of the Firearms Control Act 2000 (Act No. 60 of 2000)	Level 3	3 Credits
113924	Apply basic business ethics in a work environment	Level 2	2 Credits
119465	Write/present/sign texts for a range of communicative contexts	Level 3	5 Credits
114979	Operate a computer workstation in a business environment	Level 3	2 Credits
SKILLS PROGRAM 3: SASSETA C				Asset & reaction officer/Grade C
113909	Coach a team member in order to enhance individual performance in work environment	Level 3	5 Credits
13912	Apply knowledge of self and team in order to develop a plan to enhance team performance	Level 3	5 Credits
244578	Describe how to manage reactions arising from a traumatic event	Level 3	2 Credits
113852	Apply occupational health, safety and environmental principles	Level 3	10 Credits
13936	Outline the legal environment of a selected industry	Level 3	2 Credits
119472	Accommodate audience and context needs in oral/signed communication	Level 3	5 Credits
11508	Write security reports and take statements	Level 4	10 Credits

8. Preparation of summative assessment

After you have worked through the LEARNER GUIDE and you are satisfied that all theoretical and practical requirements/ evidence, as stipulated by the UNIT STANDARD, can be met, you need to make your own necessary arrangements with the assessor and/or facilitator. The training establishment will then arrange a suitable date for you to attend your pre-assessment meeting and then arrange for a suitable date to complete the final assessment.

8.1 RPL assessment

The assessment of RPL learners will be conducted in the same way as for those of new learners. The assessment pack is exactly the same and will therefore be used for new learners as well as RPL Learners. It must however be noted that learners who are applying for RPL must provide proof of previous learning and subject related experience prior to the assessment.

This proof or evidence can be in the format of certified copies (certificates) of previous learning programs that have been attended.

All the evidence will be assessed and authenticated before a learner will be allowed to enroll for an RPL program.

9. Roles and responsibilities

9.1 Facilitator/instructor

- Prepare to facilitate.
- Transfer of knowledge and skills

9.2 The role of the assessor

- Plan for the assessment
- Prepare the learner for the assessment

9.3 The role of the Learner

- Prepare for assessment.
- Accept the responsibility of learning.
- Accept the responsibility to produce/deliver evidence.

STUDY UNIT 1

Identify conflict

LEARNING OUTCOMES

On completion of this study unit the student will....

- ♦ Define conflict.
- ♦ Demonstrate knowledge of the common causes of conflict in the workplace.
- ♦ Distinguish between the concepts of competition and conflict.
- ♦ Demonstrate knowledge of the different types of power present during a conflict situation.
- ♦ Demonstrate knowledge and skills to identify the various signs of conflict.
- ♦ Identify different types of conflict.
- ♦ Demonstrate knowledge and skills to identify the stages of conflict.
- ♦ Explain the responses of people to conflict.
- ♦ Explain managerial actions that causes conflict

1. Definition

Conflict may be defined as a struggle or contest between people with opposing needs, ideas, beliefs, values, or goals. Conflict on teams is inevitable; however, the results of conflict are not predetermined. Conflict might escalate and lead to nonproductive results, or conflict can be beneficially resolved and lead to quality final products.

Therefore, learning to manage conflict is integral to a high-performance team. Although very few people go looking for conflict, more often than not, conflict results because of miscommunication between people with regard to their needs, ideas, beliefs, goals, or values. Conflict management is the principle that all conflicts cannot necessarily be resolved, but learning how to manage conflicts can decrease the odds of nonproductive escalation. Conflict management involves acquiring skills related to conflict resolution, self-awareness about conflict modes, conflict communication skills, and establishing a structure for management of conflict in your environment.

2. Causes of conflict

Conflict starts because people do not agree about an issue. Issues of disagreement in recent large-scale conflicts include territory, language, religion, natural resources, ethnicity or race, migration and political power. Sometimes there is more than one issue of disagreement.

While a conflict starts because of an issue of disagreement, there are usually background influences that fuel the conflict. The most important influence is power. Others include culture, identity and rights.

2.1 Common causes of conflict

Causes or sources of organizational conflict can be many and varied. The most common causes are the following:

- ◆ Scarcity of resources (finance, equipment, facilities, etc)
- ◆ Different attitudes, values or perceptions
- ◆ Disagreements about needs, goals, priorities and interests
- ◆ Poor communication
- ◆ Poor or inadequate organizational structure
- ◆ Lack of teamwork
- ◆ Lack of clarity in roles and responsibilities

3. Power

DEFINITION

Power is the ability or capacity to do something or to control and influence what others do.

It determines who makes decisions and what decisions are made. Power is often shown when two or more people interact. We tend to think of power as belonging to public figures who make decisions, such as politicians and directors of commercial companies. These people often hold a lot of power compared with the people they represent or the people who work for them and buy their products. There are also differences in power in everyday relationships. For example, age, gender, education, literacy and location all influence the amount of power we have or the amount of power that other people will recognize.

There are many sources of power. Power is not just military strength. It can include money, networks, information, authority, knowledge, security and access to resources.

Everyone has power to some degree. The state of 'powerlessness' occurs when people do not think they have power, when they cannot use their power, or when others do not recognize their power. Many people lack the confidence to influence situations which they believe are outside their control. Helping people to gain a sense of self-worth and self-confidence is the first vital step in the process of empowerment. As people gain such confidence, they become more motivated to take action and work together to challenge power imbalances.

Conflict is fuelled when the balance of power between different groups changes or is very uneven. Perhaps one group abuses their power, wants more power or fears losing their power. Perhaps another group wants to challenge those in power in order to improve the balance of power.

IMPORTANT

It is important to note that the way in which power is used varies. In a conflict situation, power can be used either to fuel conflict or to help build peace.

3.1 Two types of power

It is useful to distinguish between two different types of power:

- ♦ HARD POWER: The ability to command and enforce. Hard power usually represents physical or military power. It is dominant in violent conflicts as opposing groups struggle for victory.
- ♦ SOFT POWER: The ability to bring about co-operation. This type of power is vital for peace-building.

4. Identify signs of conflict

Especially in the workplace, two main types of disputes have been noted (although these two types may also happen in other situations). These are:

- "disputes of right", where people or groups are entitled by law, by contract, by previous agreement or by established practice to certain rights. Disputes of right will focus on conflict issues such as employment contracts, legally enforceable matters or unilateral changes in accepted or customary practices. A dispute of rights is, therefore, usually settled by legal decision or arbitration and not by negotiation.
- "disputes of interest", where the conflict may be a matter of opinion, such as where a person or group is entitled to some resources or privileges (such as access to property, better working conditions, etc). Because there is no established law or right, a dispute of interest will usually be solved through collective bargaining or negotiation.

4.1 Signs of conflict between individuals

In the organisation leaders and members should be alert to signs of conflict between colleagues, so that they can be proactive in reducing or resolving the conflict by getting to the root of the issue. Typical signs may include:

- ♦ Colleagues not speaking to each other or ignoring each other.
- ♦ Contradicting and bad-mouthing one another.
- ♦ Deliberately undermining or not co-operating with each other, to the downfall of the team.

4.2 Signs of conflict between groups of people

Similarly, leaders and members can identify latent conflict between groups of people in the organisation or the community and plan action before the conflict becomes open and destructive:

- ♦ Cliques or factions meeting to discuss issues separately, when they affect the whole organisation.
- ♦ One group being left out of organising an event which should include everybody.
- ♦ Groups using threatening slogans or symbols to show that their group is right and the others are wrong.

5. The differences between "competition" and "conflict"

"Competition" usually brings out the best in people, as they strive to be top in their field, whether in sport, community affairs, politics or work. In fact, fair and friendly competition often leads to new sporting achievements, scientific inventions or outstanding effort in solving a community problem. When competition becomes unfriendly or bitter, though, conflict can begin - and this can bring out the worst in people.

6. Types of conflict

The handling of conflict requires awareness of its various developmental stages. If leaders in the situation can identify the conflict issue and how far it has developed, they can sometimes solve it before it becomes much more serious. Typical stages include:

- ♦ Where potential for conflict exists: In other words where people recognize that lack of resources, diversity of language or culture may possible result in conflict if people are not sensitive to the diversity.
- ♦ Latent conflict where a competitive situation could easily spill over into conflict: At a political rally or in the workplace where there are obvious differences between groups of people.
- ♦ Open conflict: Which can be triggered by an incident and suddenly become real conflict.
- ♦ Aftermath conflict: The situation where a particular problem may have been resolved but the potential for conflict still exists. In fact the potential may be even greater than before, if one person or group perceives itself as being involved in a win-loose situation.

7. Stages of conflict

1.

Pre-conflict

DIFFERENCES: Discussions and differences can be healthy and productive if met with tolerance.

TENSIONS: Views become fixed and people begin to criticize their opponents and view them as the enemy. Differences between the groups get worse. The groups become more divided.

TAKE NOTE

When differences develop into tensions there are unlikely to be any short-cuts to an agreement. Once the crisis point is reached, there are no quick solutions.

2.

Confrontation

DISPUTES: Neither side will admit that they have made mistakes. They become determined. More extreme positions are taken. Threats are made but not carried out. Supporters may engage in demonstrations or other confrontational behaviour.

3.

Crisis

Peak of conflict with open hostility and/or violence. Communication between sides often stops.

HOSTILITIES: People become convinced that their views are right. Opponents are mocked, scorned and isolated. Some threats are carried out.

VIOLENCE: 'No way back'. 'They must lose'. Force is used, perhaps physical violence.

4.

Outcome

Force may run its course until one party 'wins', another surrenders, a cease-fire is agreed, or all are exhausted. Outsiders may intervene with force to bring violence to a halt.

5.

Post-conflict

End of violent confrontation:

When one side 'wins', it may not lead to positive change. It may create new injustices which could result in confrontation (Stage 2) once again.

6.

Communication channels opened

Both sides agree that a solution is needed. Outsiders may help both sides to communicate. Ways to move forward are established.

7.

Mutual understanding

People come to understand views of others and respect them. The conflicts described (sometimes mapped) to help find possible solutions.

8.

Finding solutions

An approach is found that every-one agrees on, whether this uses the law, customary methods or partnership. Solutions are agreed and acted upon.

8.

Agreement

Everyone agrees. They may agree to keep different views but always accept the views of others. It may be helpful to have a written and signed agreement for future reference.

REMEMBER

Opposing groups must open up channels of communication and work upwards to reach full agreement.

8. Peoples response to conflict

People respond to conflict in different ways, depending on how important they feel it is to maintain a relationship with the opposing group and depending on the amount of power they think they have. This can be represented on a grid:

- ♦ INDIFFERENCE: If people feel that both their goals and relationships are not important, they might simply stay out of the conflict. They might feel the conflict is none of their business. On the other hand, they might feel their involvement will make no difference.
- ♦ GIVING IN: People give in if they place great importance on their relationships with others and little upon their goals. They want peace at all costs. To be accepted and liked by other people is most important. Conflicts may disappear just because someone stays friendly. But giving in may also mean keeping silent about the real issues and hurts.
- ♦ FORCING: People who overpower their opponents have a low regard for other people. They do not place much value on relationships with others. Winning is part of the goal. Some people use force because they are used to being on top or because they do not want to admit that they might be wrong. What they do not see is that by winning, they are forcing others to lose and that they might only stop the conflict for a short time.
- ♦ COMPROMISING: People compromise if they know they will not achieve all their goals. They negotiate, bargain and promote relationships without it costing either side too much. They see the need for both sides to gain something. But sometimes the result is that everyone feels the outcome is unsatisfactory or that neither side is committed to the solution.
- ♦ CO-OPERATING: For these people, relationships and goals are important. They believe that people can find new and imaginative solutions to conflict that lead to both sides winning. When conflicting groups sit down together to discuss their goals, they often realize that their goals have changed. Perhaps they did not look at the long term. Or perhaps they came to see that everyone gained more by working as partners, not opponents.

9. Types of managerial actions that cause workplace conflicts

- ♦ Poor communications
 - ⇒ Employees experience continuing surprises, they aren't informed of new decisions, programs, etc.
 - ⇒ Employees don't understand reasons for decisions, they aren't involved in decision-making.
 - ⇒ As a result, employees trust the "rumor mill" more than management.
- ♦ The alignment or the amount of resources is insufficient. There is:
 - ⇒ Disagreement about "who does what".
 - ⇒ Stress from working with inadequate resources.

- ◆ "Personal chemistry", including conflicting values or actions among managers and employees, for example:
 - ⇒ Strong personal natures don't match.
 - ⇒ We often don't like in others what we don't like in ourselves.
- ◆ Leadership problems, including inconsistent, missing, too-strong or uninformed leadership (at any level in the organization), evidenced by:
 - ⇒ Avoiding conflict, "passing the buck" with little follow-through on decisions.
 - ⇒ Employees see the same continued issues in the workplace.
 - ⇒ Supervisors don't understand the jobs of their subordinates.

[illegible]

STUDY UNIT 2

Manage conflict

LEARNING OUTCOMES

On completion of this study unit the student will....

- ♦ Explain different conflict management styles.
- ♦ Identify the correct scenario where to apply the most correct and effective conflict management style.
- ♦ Explain the concept Conflict life cycle.
- ♦ Compare violence and conflict by identifying each in a workplace conflict scenario.
- ♦ Apply the correct conflict resolution strategy to handle and defuse conflict.
- ♦ Explain behaviour which can help managing conflict.
- ♦ Apply the correct steps to handle conflict by hand of a workplace scenario.

1. Conflict management style

Conflict Management Styles is influenced by your personality, family, traditions, and education.

Your Conflict Management Style is a combination of two variables:

- ♦ The measure you fight for your interests
- ♦ The measure you take into consideration the other's interests.

Five combinations of these two variables determine five Conflict Management Styles

- ♦ Competitive Style: If you have this style you focus on your interests and you totally neglect the other's interests. You are ready to win at all costs. Relationships are not important for you, just achieving your goal. Means are not important for you, just achieving your goal. You may attack the other person with criticism, put-downs, name-calling or violence.
- ♦ Accommodating Style: This style is the opposite of the Competitive style: you focus on achieving the other's goal and totally neglect your own goal. Relations with the other party are more important than winning. You seek an agreement at almost any cost, offering concessions in order to preserve (or create) a good relationship with the other side.
- ♦ Avoiding Style: If you have this style you have a low focus on goals as well as on relations. You avoid or pretend the conflict does not exist, even if you will not achieve your goals or will damage your relations with the other party.
- ♦ Compromise Style: If you have this style you win something from what you wanted and give-up something else, by dividing and sharing. Of course, you have limits of how much you are willing to give away.
- ♦ Collaborative (Cooperative) Style: If you use this style you give high importance at the same time to goals and relations. Cooperative style involves full and open communication: you are attentive to the other, you are waiting to respond, and you make helpful suggestions. Is the most difficult and time-consuming approach, but has the best results if both parties use this style.

TAKE NOTE

Conflict Management Style determines, in many situations, if the Conflict will develop into a constructive or destructive situation.

2. Scenarios where a conflict management style is the most effective2.1 Competitive style is better used:

- ◆ In emergency situations when quick, decisive actions are needed.
- ◆ When you have the main responsibility/expertise to solve the problems or unpopular changes need to be implemented.

2.2 Accommodating style is better used:

- ◆ When the relations to be preserved are more important than achieving your goal.
- ◆ When the issue is more important to the other person than to you.
- ◆ When neglecting your own goals is based on your values system (you are saints)
- ◆ When you use it as a strategy of losing a battle but hoping to win the war.
- ◆ When you want others to learn by their actions and encourage them to express themselves..

2.3 Avoiding style is better used:

- ◆ When you ask yourself “What will happen if I do not do anything?” and if the answer is “Nothing” than probably it is worth avoiding the conflict.
- ◆ When you consider that you will lose more by confrontation than by avoidance, or the issue at stake is minor.
- ◆ When you decide to postpone the conflict because you want to gain time (in order to collect more information, or to be better prepared for the conflict situation, or to let hot emotions to cool down).

2.4 Compromise style is better used:

- ◆ When both parties have equal power.
- ◆ When you want to achieve temporary settlements in complex matters, as an intermediary steps toward a more sustainable agreement developed through cooperation.
- ◆ When is a crisis upon resources such as time, energy or other material resources that are limited and the problem to be solved is important and urgent.

2.5 Cooperative style is better used:

- ◆ When it is important to preserve important objectives without compromising and at the same time maintaining relations.
- ◆ When it is important to get to the roots of unresolved problems that may have lingering for a long time.
- ◆ When there is a complex issue, involving many interests and many parties.

3. Conflicts life cycle

Conflicts have their own life cycle: they are born, they may arrive at full and intense expression and they die, having inside them the seed for a new beginning.

We may symbolize the life cycle by a curve, on the horizontal line being the time and on the vertical the conflict intensity.

Conflict escalates from early signs to violence much easier than de-escalates after violence occurred. Very rarely conflicts go from early stages into violent stages suddenly. They are gradually going through stages that can be recognized as steps toward violence.

The early signs are non-verbal, attitudes and behaviors that express parties' disagreements and frustrations. If parties are aware and recognize them, the issues can be discussed, clarified and solved.

If not addressed, the tension rises and parties may express verbally their feelings and positions during disputes. If parties are open to hear each other and communicate effectively, the issues can be discussed, clarified and solved.

If Conflict is not solved the tension may continue to rise. Communication between parties becomes more difficult. Conflict expands involving more issues and more persons or organizations that take the side of one party or the other. Parties become polarized, focused on achieving their own goals and deaf and blind toward the other's goals. They may try again to solve their dispute and sit down at the negotiation table.

If they fail to solve the conflict the situation could worsen. Parties arrive at the level of segregation, when communication is broken, and they cannot anymore talk to each other. In this stage, a third part intervener, mediator, facilitator, arbitrator or judge can help solve the conflict with peaceful means. As we move from mediation toward the judicial system the chance to improve relationships is decreasing. But at least violence is not used to achieve goals.

If peaceful means fail the situation can get more and more tense and the conflict is heading toward violent outbreak. Extremists who are better prepared and organized to fight aggressively for their goals usually grab the leadership. Additional grievances are raised. Parties begin to view each other as less than human, thus not deserving human treatment. Dehumanization makes possible for parties to engage in violence, to hurt each other and to violate the generally accepted norms of behavior regarding one's fellow man.

IMPORTANT

Conflict should not be confused with Violence, as many do it.

4. Violence

DEFINITION

Violence is only a conflict manifestation, when its intensity is the highest, emotions are strongest and rationality lowest.

Is violence in the human nature? Those who are optimists say no, it is not in the human nature, but it is present as a potential that can be activated:

- ♦ If human basic needs are left unattended by cynical actors or bad structures.
- ♦ If the culture glorifies violence and justifies revenge (violence as a compensation to violence)

Violence has not only visible effects as death and physical damages, but also invisible effects such as traumas, myths of glory and heroes, addiction to revenge and victory, that may be more important because they influence the behavior of future generations. If nothing is done about the conflict basic causes “after violence” becomes easily “before violence”.

Violence can be stopped “naturally” if people run out of means of destruction, if they run out of targets to be destroyed, if they run out of willingness to destroy, if belligerents become tired and disgusted or they run out of the hope of winning.

Violence can be stopped also, more rapidly, by force: a military intervention, called peace – keeping, when an outside party put apart those in conflict and assist them in the transition from violence to peace.

5. Resolution strategies to solve conflicts

The Alternative Resolution Strategies can be presented on a continuum from:

- ♦ The very early stages of a conflict till the violence outburst,
- ♦ More control over the outcomes till lose of control,
- ♦ More sustainable solution till very unstable one,
- ♦ More satisfaction with the outcome till less satisfaction,
- ♦ Improved or at least not damaged relationships till broken relationships.

They are:

- ♦ Direct Communication
- ♦ Negotiation (structured communication)
- ♦ Mediation (facilitated negotiation)
- ♦ Facilitation of Problem-Solving processes

5.1 Direct Communication

A simplified model of inter-personal communication involves two people - the Speaker and the Listener, two processes: sending and receiving, and one message.

What can you do as Speakers, the message senders, to improve your communication skills?

- ♦ Know what you mean and express it clearly
- ♦ Resist the temptation to make personal attacks and accuse your opponents
- ♦ Use de-escalatory language, by replacing accusatory “you” statements with less provocative “I” statements. Such as “I feel as if I am not being understood” instead of “You are stupid if you do not understand me”.

- ♦ Try to express your true feelings and thoughts, through an Assertive behavior. What is Assertive behavior? The assertive behavior is placed on a continuum between submissive (non-assertive behavior) and aggressive behavior. People who behave submissively demonstrate a lack of respect for their own needs and rights. Aggressive persons express their feelings, needs and ideas at the expense of others. Assertive persons, while meeting own needs do not violate the needs of others. Most animals defend their space and their lives by fight (aggressiveness) or flight (submissiveness). Only humans have the third option of verbal confrontation through assertive messages.

What can you do as Listeners, the message receivers, to improve your communication skills?

- ♦ Be a good listener. Listening is more than merely hearing with your ears. As one little girl, looking up to her father, who was reading the newspaper, said: "Daddy, you have to listen to me with your eyes as well as your ears!" When listening look at the message meanings behind the words you hear, use your eyes to observe and understand the messages of the body gestures, the tone of the voice, the face expressions.
- ♦ Apply active listening techniques:
 - ⇒ Basic acknowledgements including verbal and non-verbal signs and sounds that let the speaker know you are listening with interest and respect
 - ⇒ Attentive Silence - keep silent even if it is difficult, but when you succeed to do it, usually you are able to find out more information from the speaker.
- ♦ Questions: Use open-ended questions that are preferable to close-ended questions, because they are providing opportunities for the speaker to open up.
- ♦ Paraphrasing is a tool that you may use to summarize, to clarify or to confirm if you, as listener, have understood correctly what was said. Paraphrasing is focused on the speaker's content. "Excuse me, but let me see if I understand what you are saying..."
- ♦ Mirroring involves reflecting back to the speaker in succinct statements the emotions he/she is communicating.
- ♦ Reflecting meanings: Once you know how to reflect feelings and content separately it is relatively easy to put the two together into a statement that reflects the entire meaning.
- ♦ Summative reflection is a brief restatement of the main themes and feelings the speaker expressed over a longer period of discussions.

5.2 Negotiation (structured communication)

DEFINITION

Competitive negotiation is a process of win-lose bargaining with compromise or impasse as the likely outcomes.

DEFINITION

Collaborative negotiation is a win-win process where people constructively deal with their differences focusing on satisfying the needs of both sides.

IMPORTANT

What is important is that you understand the consequences of your strategic decision when answering the question: Should I approach the negotiation in a competitive or collaborative way? Research has shown that collaboration is leading to more collaboration and competition toward more competition

Using a collaborative strategy can look very simple, but in fact is very complex and difficult to master. Collaborative negotiation, or principled negotiation has as outcome a good agreement.

What is a good agreement? It is:

- ♦ Wise: satisfies the parties interests, in a fair and long lasting way
- ♦ Efficient: takes less time and effort to reach it
- ♦ Improves: or at least not damages, parties relationships

In order to reach a good agreement, the negotiation process should follow four principles:

- ♦ Separate the people from the issues: separate people's problems from substantive ones
- ♦ Focus on interests rather than positions: find the real problems under apparent solutions
- ♦ Generate a variety of options before settling an agreement: look at alternative solutions to the same problem
- ♦ Insist that the agreement is based on objective criteria: find objective criteria to take any decisions, from identifying the real and priority problems, till selecting the best solution

5.3 Mediation

Is a structured negotiation process, facilitated by the mediator.

The mediator assists those involved in conflict to break the cycle of blame and stop fighting with each other, help them communicate better, help them identify their needs and work together to develop a solution that meets those needs. Unlike a judge or an arbitrator, the mediator does not make decisions for the parties involved and does not assign blame or fault.

The mediator's job is to:

- ♦ Get the parties to agree to mediation
- ♦ Create an appropriate climate by the set up of the room and of behavior ground rules
- ♦ Find out what happened, listening carefully to each party
- ♦ Encourage parties to carefully listen to each other, talk one at a time, and help them understand the perspective of the other
- ♦ Help parties identify their needs and find solutions that work for all sides

The mediation process is:

- ♦ Confidential: The mediator can not be called to testify in the court and all the information remains between parties involved.
- ♦ Voluntary: Mediation only happens if parties understand the process and the mediator role and agree to participate.
- ♦ Efficient: The mediation process is less time and money consuming, compared to litigation or to continued fighting.
- ♦ Empowering parties: Disputants can discuss whatever issues they consider to be relevant, without having the fear that the content will be judged; they have control over the decision-making process and do not face the risk of a decision that is made without their consent.
- ♦ Informal: Parties can discuss and express their ideas and feelings in an informal and confidential setting.
- ♦ Constructive: Parties increase their chances to fix or improve their relationship, in contrast with litigation that ends in blame and hostile feelings, damaging relationships.
- ♦ Sustainable: Agreements are in most cases implemented by the parties who developed and own them.

5.4 Problem solving processes

You can solve your problems peacefully through facilitated Problem solving processes, that avoid the use of power and coercion, and those involved, can identify the sources of conflicts and develop solutions to the satisfaction of all parties.

The facilitator role is very similar to the role of mediator. The facilitator focuses his/her attention on the following:

- ♦ Improved communication: The facilitator creates an environment that foster communication among parties, an atmosphere in which everyone feel free to express their points of view, their needs and their concerns, without offending the others.
- ♦ Effective decision-making: The facilitator helps parties take group decisions by assuring that everyone's ideas and concerns have been heard and that all can live with the decisions made.
- ♦ Logic of problem solving: The facilitator proposes and agrees with parties on the sequence of the steps to be taken toward achieving their goal, and monitors the progress, maintaining the focus on the agreed agenda.

There are various models for problem-solving processes, depending on the types of relationships groups' and communities' members have in the moment of starting the process.

- ♦ There are communities and groups deeply divided by conflicts, many of them alongside ethnic boarder lines;
- ♦ There are communities and groups segmented by conflicting interests or goals that need to come together but do not have the tools to deliberate on their needs; and
- ♦ There are coherent groups and communities who have a sense of "we" and want to work together to solve common problems.

The process steps differ from one situation to other, more divided the community longer will be the process and more time will be devoted to building and improving relationships before focusing on substantive issues.

The general steps may include:

- ♦ Improve relations: Calm down, cool-off, stop arguing, name-calling, build a sense of "we have a problem"
- ♦ Identify the real problem: Search under symptoms and solutions for the real problem to be treated.
- ♦ Think of solutions: Generate as many options as possible, be creative and innovative, involve all stakeholders in your solutions.

- ♦ Select best option: Assess the solutions impact, advantages and disadvantages and chose the best solution.
- ♦ Develop an implementation plan: Identify actions, who is responsible, what resources do you need, when do you expect to finalize the action

6. Negative feelings before or during conflict

- ♦ Hurt
- ♦ Scared
- ♦ Frightened
- ♦ Ignored
- ♦ Confused
- ♦ Isolated
- ♦ Challenged
- ♦ Threatened
- ♦ Unwanted
- ♦ Disliked
- ♦ Put down
- ♦ Controlled
- ♦ Judgmental

7. Positive feelings after proper handling of conflict

- ♦ Cared for
- ♦ Confident
- ♦ Relieved
- ♦ Listened to
- ♦ Clear on things
- ♦ More intimate with others
- ♦ Challenged to grow
- ♦ Open to truth
- ♦ Accepted by others
- ♦ Respected
- ♦ Supported
- ♦ Understood
- ♦ Accepting of differences

8. Behaviors which help in managing conflict

- ♦ Use "I" statements: Let the other party know how you feel when the conflict is occurring. Let the other person know how you react to the conflict. Let the other person know which of your rights you feel is being ignored in the conflict.
- ♦ Be assertive, not aggressive: Speak about your feelings and your reactions. Keep the statements focused on how you are behaving, thinking, and feeling rather than on how the other is acting.

- ♦ Speak calmly, coolly and rationally: In this way you will be listened to, and you will be able to maintain better control of yourself. Otherwise the other person may be put in a defensive attitude.
- ♦ Avoid blaming: This will keep the communication flow going. It encourages understanding and empathy for each other's feelings. It recognizes that for a conflict to exist there must be at least two parties who are adversely affected by the conflict.
- ♦ Create an atmosphere of healing: In an attempt to heal the wounds resulting from a conflict, all parties involved must feel that they are being listened to and understood; that their rights are being respected. They must feel the desire to work things out and a commitment to the process of working out the problems. They must feel wanted and cared for by the parties involved.
- ♦ Be willing to forgive: Forgiveness is a powerful tool of healing. You have a chance for personal growth by forgiving others for their part in the hurt and pain you suffered. At times, this is the only way to resolve a conflict.
- ♦ Be willing to forget: Once you have "resolved" a conflict and felt like you were listened to, cared for, and understood, then "let go" of the conflict. Once you have implemented an agreed resolution, put aside the conflict. Put it behind you. Get it out of your mind. Forget it. Don't bring it up in the future as if it had not been resolved. If you write down the resolution of the conflict, you will have written proof that it is over and is to be forgotten.
- ♦ Be honest: In resolving a conflict it is imperative that you be honest with yourself and others about your feelings, and reactions to the conflict and to the resolutions. If you are feeling in a way you think you must, or in a way the others want you to, not "being yourself," then the resolution of the conflict is a false one. The conflict is sure to recur. You gain nothing by being dishonest in the management of conflict. You waste your time and energy and end up feeling failure or guilt rather than growth.
- ♦ Focus on feelings rather than on content: Effective listening and responding are key elements in the productive resolution of conflict. Listen for the feelings and emotions of the other and reflect them with empathy and understanding. This creates an atmosphere of being cared for and listened to. It reduces defensiveness. It focuses on the process involved rather than on the issues, and it brings the parties to a clearer recognition of their individuality and humanity. To focus on feelings clarify the issues, eliminating extraneous items.
- ♦ Show respect for yourself and for others: You will gain more in resolving a conflict by showing respect (honey), than by showing disrespect (vinegar), e.g., being vindictive, taking revenge, threatening, yelling, accusing, belittling, ostracizing, ignoring. If you are on the receiving end of disrespect, remove yourself as soon as possible. When the other has cooled down, perhaps the discussion can be continued in a respectful manner. If you lose your "cool" and become disrespectful, stop as soon as you can by either removing yourself or by silencing yourself. Maintaining a respectful atmosphere is essential in resolving conflict.

- ♦ Be willing to apologize or admit a mistake: It is necessary to admit to one's mistake and to apologize for one's behavior before a stalemate in conflict resolution can be overcome. It takes courage, character, and fortitude to admit an error: a lack of judgment; an uncalled for action; disrespectful behavior; or a lack of caring, concern, or understanding. Stronger relationships can result when such willingness is exhibited.
- ♦ Be willing to compromise: If you cling to your position as the only one to be considered, you are closing out the other person(s). To succeed in resolving conflict, all parties must feel like they have gained in the resolution. In order to resolve a conflict where the opposing parties are at opposite extremes on an issue, there is a need to come to the middle if all are to experience a "winning" posture. Only through compromise can each be a winner in conflict resolution. Without compromise, you have either given in and lost, or have gotten your own way with the other party having lost. Ideally, all parties should feel that they have won.

9. Steps that can be taken to handle conflict

Step 1: Clarify that conflict exists. If you sense a conflict, answer the following questions in your pocket book:

- ♦ What is the content (or issues) involved in the conflict?
- ♦ For whom is this a conflict?
- ♦ When does the conflict manifest itself? For how long?
- ♦ Under what circumstances is this a conflict?
- ♦ What are the hidden issues, those below the surface, in this conflict?
- ♦ Why is this a conflict?
- ♦ What is the worst possible consequence if this conflict is:
 - ⇒ never addressed?
 - ⇒ addressed and not resolved?
 - ⇒ addressed and I give in?
 - ⇒ addressed and the other gives in?
 - ⇒ addressed and we both win?
- ♦ What are my feelings when facing this conflict?
- ♦ How does this conflict fit into my belief system about myself?
- ♦ What does this conflict say about the personality of the people involved?
- ♦ What is the conflict, really?

Step 2: Summarize the answers to the questions in Step 1 into a clear, detailed description of the conflict with its variables.

Step 3: Begin to problem solve in your mind. Write out alternative resolutions to the conflict.

Step 4: Narrow down the alternatives until you come to the top priority resolution in your mind. Write it in your pocket book and decide if the resolution:

- ♦ Respects the rights of all parties.
- ♦ Will ultimately have all parties feeling like winners.
- ♦ Will allow a healing process to begin, with no one being blamed.
- ♦ Provides for finality of the conflict with no recurrence.
- ♦ Will result in better understanding by all parties with all feelings being respected.

Step 5: Once you have completed Steps 3 and 4 on your own, you are ready to speak directly with the those with whom you are in conflict. Ask the person (s) to consider the script (i.e., written document) concerning the conflict. Go over all points on the conflict (Steps 1 and 2), possible resolutions to the conflict (Step 3), and analyze how the top priority resolutions are beneficial to all parties involved (Step 4).

Ask the party (s) if they have done a similar exercise in conflict management on their own; if not, would they like time to try Steps 1 through 4?

Step 6: All parties closely examine the top resolutions (Steps 3 and 4). Jointly analyze the options based on the questions in Step 4. Spend time discussing them, then use a joint problem solving

Step 7: Once a jointly owned conflict resolution is decided upon, the parties set an implementation time and an evaluation procedure to determine if the resolution is successful in averting similar conflict (s). They commit to implement the resolution and set a specific date to meet and review the resolution.

Step 8: If, during the subsequent meeting, it is determined that the conflict has gone unresolved, alter the resolution accordingly, continuing to consider all feelings.

TAKE NOTE

If you find yourselves at an impasse, return to Step 1 and begin again. Occasionally professional help or that of an objective outsider might be necessary.

[illegible]

STUDY UNIT 3

Workplace procedures

LEARNING OUTCOMES

On completion of this study unit the student will....

- ♦ Identify the correct workplace procedure to follow in the event of the following scenarios.
 - ⇒ Dealing with difficult people.
 - ⇒ Dealing with angry and aggressive people.
 - ⇒ Dealing with alcoholics and drug addict
- ♦ Explain the use of force when:
 - ⇒ Removing a suspect/person from a site.
 - ⇒ Physical restraining techniques are used.
- ♦ Conduct a threat assessment before confronting a person.
- ♦ Explain the responses of individuals after a threat assessment.
- ♦ Explain the concept of good communication skills during the process of defusing conflict.

TAKE NOTE

1. Introduction

Each company will have their own set of standard operating procedures and policies. As a result thereof we will only look at a an example of such a procedure. The content of this study unit are generic procedures and techniques.

IMPORTANT

It is important to note that each learner after completion of this program needs to consult with their managers/supervisor to get familiar with their company standard operating procedures and policies.

The rules and regulations pertaining the actions to be taken for, Ejection of people, physical restraints and verbal persuasion will be different from company to company.

It is however necessary that those rules and procedures are within the limits of the South African Law.

2. Deal with difficult people

THE BOTTOM LINE: Difficult people can make your work day less enjoyable. With the right strategies, you can learn to deal with them effectively. If you have to work with difficult people every day, you probably dread going to work each morning. What's more, you might get so stressed that you can't concentrate on the job.

Have you ever wondered why some people are difficult to work with? “

QUOTE:

Individuals behave in a difficult manner because they have learned that doing so keeps others off balance and incapable of effective action. Worst of all, they appear immune to all the usual methods of communication and persuasion designed to convince or help them change their ways,” says Robert M. Bramson, Ph.D., author of coping With Difficult People.

2.1 How to Cope

Avoid these “don'ts” when dealing with difficult people:

- ♦ Don't take difficult people's behavior personally. Their troublesome behavior is habitual and affects most people with whom they come in contact.
- ♦ Don't fight back or try to beat them at their own games. They have been practicing their skills for a life time, and you're an amateur.
- ♦ Don't try to appease them. Difficult people have an insatiable appetite for more.
- ♦ Don't try to change them. You can only change your responses to their behavior.

2.3 Guidelines to deal with difficult people

- ♦ Stop and think before you say anything: This is good advice no matter what the situation. When you feel attacked the first thing that pops into your head is seldom the most effective response. If you make it a practice to wait twenty-four hours before you answer criticisms the people around you may be so surprised by your maturity and reasonableness that they will listen to you for a change.

- ♦ Listen carefully: Every criticism contains useful information as well as an attack. If you don't hear anything useful at first, keep listening until you do.
- ♦ Ask for advice rather than giving answers: The explanations you think of will sound perfectly reasonable and at least 150% correct. To you. To other people they will sound like a misguided defense against a misperceived personal attack. Most any explanation you choose will make you look even more wrong. Trust me on this. If, by sheer force of reason, your explanation actually succeeds in getting the criticism modified or withdrawn, it may feel like you've won, but it probably means that people have decided it's easier to humor you than treat you like a rational human being.
- ♦ What if you have to criticize someone who takes things too personally? Structure the situation so that he or she doesn't have to admit wrongdoing by accepting what you have to say. In Asia they'd call it allowing the person to save face. Make it clear in your comments that you understand how a reasonable and honorable person might do what he or she did. Direct your advice toward improving the situation rather than pointing out mistakes. Focus on what you want to happen rather than what's wrong with what has already happened. Come to think of it, this is a good way to present criticism to anyone, because you never know who's going to take it personally.

3. Handling angry clients

One angry customer can spoil your whole day, unless you have a working knowledge of neurophysiology. Angry people are using the walnut-sized part of the brain that hasn't changed since the age of dinosaurs instead of the more intelligent hardware that has evolved over the past hundred million years.

The dinosaur in them can bring out the dinosaur in you, which leads to the Godzilla-meets-Rodan effect, in which there is considerable sound and fury, but very little constructive reasoning. The secret of dealing effectively with angry customers is to stay out of your dinosaur brain long enough to get them out of theirs. Here's how:

- ♦ ASK FOR A MINUTE TO STOP AND THINK: This will have a calming effect on you and the customer. No one will get angrier at you for asking for time to think things over.
- ♦ KNOW YOUR GOAL: The dinosaur's rules are simple, if attacked, fight back or run away. Either response will make the situation worse. Try instead to help your customer calm down and use the part of the brain that can reason.

REMEMBER.....

Remember, you can't help a person and get her back at the same time.

- ♦ IF THE OTHER PERSON IS YELLING, don't DO ANYTHING UNTIL YOU GET HIM OR HER TO STOP: Just keeping your own voice soft may do the trick. Saying "Please speak more slowly. I'd like to help," works particularly well on the phone. Have you ever tried to yell slowly? On the phone remember the "Uh-huh" rule. We usually respond with "Uh-huh" when the other person takes a breath. If you go three breaths without saying "Uh-huh" the other person will stop and ask, "Are you there?" Following this technique will allow you to interrupt without saying a word.
- ♦ DO NOT EXPLAIN! Explanations are all too often a disguised form of fighting back or running away. The typical explanation boils down to: "If you know all the facts, you will see that I am right and you are wrong." You cannot be right and effective at the same time. don't even try.
- ♦ LET THE CUSTOMER KNOW YOU HEAR: Before you try to solve the problem, let the customer know that you understand why he or she is upset. This will save you from having to hear it again.
- ♦ ASK, "WHAT WOULD YOU LIKE ME TO DO?" This question is usually the last thing an angry person expects. Hell have to stop and think to answer. This is exactly what you want.
- ♦ NEGOTIATE: It's a lot easier when the customer is using the part of her brain you can negotiate with.

4. Deal with alcoholics on site

- ♦ Confront the situation with the gravity it really has. Laughing or joking with lead the alcoholic to believe that this isn't a serious thing. Don't invite levity in a situation that shouldn't have any.
- ♦ Talk to the alcoholic, and be firm about your convictions. Lay out exactly what and why you're having the issue with his or her drinking. Be specific.
- ♦ Helping the alcoholic stop drinking will be the best gift you could ever give. Offer assistance. Give him or her the list of local AA meetings. Offer to go with them. Offer inpatient treatment options if that is an option.
- ♦ Be kind, be loving, but be firm. Don't deliver ultimatums, but be firm in the consequences. If this is your spouse, and you can't take it anymore, say so. Detail that you can't live with a problem drinker anymore. Follow through on these consequences. If you threaten to move out, be prepared to back it up!

5. The use of force in the process of removing a person from site

TAKE NOTE

There are however limitations (strict rules) which have to be complied with before an alleged offender may be stopped in such a way.

Before the amendment to sec 49 of the CPA, the arrestor could have used maximum force to overcome resistance to the arrest.

That includes the killing of the accused which, if the killing of an alleged suspect complied with the requirements set out in the Criminal procedure Act, could be considered as justifiable homicide.

The way in which the law has now been changed means in effect that not only a private person, but even police officials, may only use force to effect the arrest if that force is immediately necessary for the purposes of protecting the arrestor, any person lawfully assisting the arrestor or any other person from imminent or future death or grievous bodily harm.

RECOMMENDED

It is however recommended that a officer verbally request a person to remove himself from the site.

6. Threat assessment

There is an inherent danger associated with the security profession. Whether an officer is in a metropolitan area or a rural community, wearing a badge and a firearm will put him in dangerous situations.

DEFINITION

Threat assessment is the act of becoming aware of a situation directly through the senses, including hearing and seeing, thereby making a reasonable determination about the risks involved.

Any suspect potentially can be assaultive and use deadly force. However, approaching every suspect in a high-risk mode (e.g., firearm drawn) would be unreasonable. There can be many articulable facts that support threat assessment.

Some of the facts used in this judgment decision are listed on the next page;

- ♦ Physical actions
- ♦ Suspect statements and/or spontaneous utterances
- ♦ Suspicion level - Some or Mere/Reasonable/Probable Cause
- ♦ Time of day
- ♦ Number of officers/suspects
- ♦ Size & ability of officers/suspects
- ♦ Prior history/Criminal History
- ♦ Officer's experiences
- ♦ Age - Officer vs. Suspect
- ♦ Visible awareness - visible weapons/unusual bulges/unusual nervousness/hands in view
- ♦ Frailness of suspect
- ♦ Physical/mental disability of suspect

Some of the facts above can be aggravating or mitigating.

For example, if the suspect is elderly his age could be a mitigating factor reducing the perceived threat level.

EXAMPLE:

REMEMBER

Remember, no matter what age a person is, a firearm are the great equalizers.

Assessing behavior and preventing a physical assault should be accomplished whenever possible.

CRITICAL

- ⇒ It is critical for an officer to recognize and assess aggressive verbal and physical actions of a person.
- ⇒ Recognizing verbal and nonverbal aggressive behavior signals will aid the officer in preventing and de-escalating situations. Also, it prepares the officer mentally and physically to take immediate counter actions should a physical assault occur.

6.1 “Pre-assault indicators”

Before physical action by an aggressor occurs, that individual usually begins to threaten to attack, in an attempt to intimidate the opponent, through a process sometimes called posturing, ritualized combat, or affective aggression.

These “pre-assault indicators” are listed below.

- ♦ Verbal aggression: yelling, swearing, etc.
- ♦ A change in posture: stands taller, sets head and shoulders, moves away/moves closer, points, forms fist and/or loads the arm.
- ♦ Face becomes red, lips separate to show teeth, breathing becomes faster, and perspiration appears on the skin. • Individual ignores others, looks away or stares through people.
- ♦ Creates a false sense of security by becoming very cooperative or acting incapacitated.
- ♦ Aggression redirected to something/someone else, such as breaking pencils, kicking, chairs, yelling at bystanders
- ♦ Individual's stance changes - blades body, lowers center of gravity, shifts weight. Lips become tight as breathing, though still rapid, deepens. The face loses its flush to become pale.
- ♦ Hands tighten, open or closed, arms and shoulders will shift.
- ♦ Individual may bob or rock while shifting eyes to possible targets. Individual may stop all motion in defiance.
- ♦ Head will come down, chin tucked, eyebrows tightened and dropped.

7. Responses based on the threat assessment

- ♦ Position of advantage: Officers should position themselves so they have a position of advantage over those persons they contact. Threat assessment is the key to determining which position of advantage an officer should use.

Positions of advantage can provide safety but must be balanced with efficiency.

For example, when issuing the driver of a vehicle a access control permit the officer notices a firearm. It is likely that he will go from a position of low hands ready to a position of cover/distance and a high ready (pistol) position. Why not take the position of cover before seeing the firearm?

Safety vs. efficiency, he cannot issue routine access control permit from behind cover. However, by being alert he can maximize his safety even during face-to-face encounters.

REMEMBER

Remember an officer's position of advantage changes based on his threat assessment because different situations necessitate different positioning. No two situations are exactly alike.

- ♦ Field Interview Stance: The purpose of the field interview stance also known as the field interrogation stance or F.I. stance is to give the officer a proactive non-aggressive approach to self-defense. Officers should be in a F.I. Stance whenever they are armed and near any member of the public.

To assume this stance, an officer must blade the trunk of his body with the firearm (dominant) side turned away from the person addressed. He positions his feet about shoulder width apart, with the knees slightly bent to have good balance. The non-dominant leg is forward and the dominant leg back. He distributes his body weight equally to allow for quick movement in any direction. He keeps his arms close to his sides, his dominant arm's elbow close to his handgun and his hands near his centerline. The non-dominant hand is used for gesturing if necessary. This position keeps the officer's firearm farther away from a potential threat.

- ♦ Low Ready Position: The low hands ready position is almost the same as the F.I. Stance except the hands are held just up from the waist line in a palms down manner almost as if to gesture "calm down." This hand position is a very good method to calm or keep a situation non-aggressive while ensuring the officer is ready for self-defense against a spontaneous face-to-face attack. This position should be used during any low threat face-to-face detention or arrest.
- ♦ High Ready Position: The high ready position is slightly different than the low ready position. In the high ready position, the officer's hands are brought up to protect the head, while simultaneously widening their feet and lowering their center of gravity. Widening the feet is known as "getting a base". When getting a good base, the officers should have their feet more than shoulder width apart (wide), their feet should be offset, with the non-dominant foot forward (deep), and they should lower their center of gravity keeping their head over their center. This allows the officer the best position for defending themselves and allows for tactical movement.

When moving to the high ready position, the officer should provide loud verbal commands to the suspect such as "get back, don't resist". This asserts that the officer is in control of the arrest situation as well as identifying to the suspect and other possible witnesses what the officer wants the suspect to do.

- ♦ Arriving on scene: When arriving on scene, or sometimes prior to arriving on scene, a law enforcement officer will start the threat assessment process as was described earlier in the study guide. When the officer physically arrives on scene, they can assess some of the physical characteristics that can be used to their advantage such as cover and concealment.

8. Communication Skills

An officer's communication can be broken down into three categories:

- ♦ officer presence,
- ♦ verbalization,
- ♦ and listening,

All of which are part of a continuous communication process. Ninety seven percent of security work involves communicating with the public.

An officer can inflame a situation through miscommunication or misinterpreting the communication received. The officer can also de-escalate a potentially violent situation through appropriate application of good communication skills. It is always better to talk someone into voluntary cooperation than to fight them into compliance.

8.1 Officer presence

The mere presence of an officer on the scene can sometimes defuse a volatile situation and prevent an assault. Command presence, which includes the officer's appearance, mannerisms, tone of voice, posture, gestures, facial expressions, and eye contact, should convey a sense of authority, tempered with compassion. Like actors, officers need to change their nonverbal and symbolic communication for varying situations. In some situations, officers must be a compassionate and caring friend to a victim while other situations may require the stoic enforcement of an unpopular law.

Remember it is human nature to make judgments about how someone looks and everything else being equal, a suspect is more likely to challenge an officer who looks inattentive and weak.

8.2 Verbalizing

The goals of verbal communication for the officer are to direct, to control, and to gather information. Officers should make every effort to de-escalate situations by voice commands and by asking for cooperation. The words used and the tone of voice must convey the message the officer wants to send. Eliminate barriers to communication. When giving directions, keep it simple.

Low Threat Assistance/Interview Situations: When dealing with compliant suspects and passive resisters, verbal commands and requests for assistance are often adequate to accomplish the desired behavior. Always calibrate the intensity of voice to the context of the situation. Ask them their name: personalize the interaction. Give them options, and point out why they would want to cooperate. With victims, provide psychological first aid. Paraphrase their responses and meaning.

High Threat/Assaultive Situations: Be firm, authoritative. Tell them specifically what they must do. Do not use threatening or fighting words or profanity. Continue to give commands while employing other use of force options. When working with a partner, do not give conflicting commands.

Emotionally Disturbed Persons/Abnormal Behavior: Abnormal Behavior can be caused by a variety of conditions, including diminished mental or emotional capacity, drug and alcohol influences, and numerous medical conditions. While generally not dangerous, many people displaying abnormal behavior are highly unpredictable. They are easily frightened and often do not understand simple commands. Techniques for handling abnormal behavior include using extreme caution, assessing the cause of the behavior, calling for assistance, speaking slowly and softly, removing distractions, explaining actions in advance, and using physical contact as a last resort.

8.3 Listening

Listening is a critical part of the officer's job. Almost all aspects of law enforcement involve active listening. Hearing is not the same as listening. Listen for the intended meaning of the words used. Listen for feelings and emotions involved. Listen for the nonverbal sounds that indicate understanding. Listen for verbal clues that could indicate an attack. Words and actions should match. Listen for communications/signals between suspects. Listen for tone of voice and volume. A change in tone or volume could indicate a change in intent. Listen for clues of compliance or surrender. Listen to other officers on the scene: send the same message.

During high stress situations, people often experience auditory exclusion, where the ability to hear is diminished or distorted. For that reason, during most high threat situations (rapid raids, suspect with a weapon) officers should speak loud, clear, and concise using short repetitive commands. Officers should identify themselves as security to keep it simple and clear. In extreme situations such as an assault be sure to yell commands loud enough to warn innocent bystander and to get backup.

9. Physical restraining techniques.

The use of physical restraining techniques and equipment are dealt with in the learning program "Use security equipment."

[illegible]

STUDY UNIT 4

Report writing

LEARNING OUTCOMES

On completion of this study unit the student will....

- ◆ Understand and describe the various components of a report.
- ◆ Write a report that will meet all the requirements of a good report.
- ◆ Submit a report for feedback purpose to all the relevant role players.

1. Introduction

Due to the nature of this work, it is often required of a security officer to submit a written report regarding incidents observed. The quality of such a report is of utmost importance as future security actions are often based on the facts contained in the report submitted.

Reporting is a manner in which one person communicates with another. This may either be in writing or verbally. Each method has its advantages and disadvantages.

The written word has the advantage that it can be consulted at a later stage to verify the facts. A disadvantage, however, is that nobody can make use of gestures, tone of voice, etc in the written word, when expressing what they mean.

Care must be taken that the written word (report) conveys to the reader exactly what the writer intends to convey.

A report, in whatever form, can be defined as follows:

A report is a written, systematic account of the actions, observations and findings of the reporter on which he has based his deduction and opinions.

2. Forms of reporting

The reason for the report, as well as the objectives of the writer, will determine the form of the report. A report can adopt any one of the following forms:

- ♦ Covering letters which normally accompany other documents;
- ♦ Letters between various offices on subjects of mutual interest.
- ♦ Circular letters from one office to another, normally to subordinate offices regarding matters of general importance;
- ♦ Requests for one or other privilege, permission, equipment or any other matter directed to higher, parallel or other authority;
- ♦ Reports by a lower authority regarding a matter or incident.

3. Requirements for good reporting

A report must meet certain requirements before it can be classified as a good report. It must be kept in mind that the writer and the reader are separated. The reader cannot question the writer in order to clarify obscurities. It is a waste of time requesting further information by letter. What is more, a poor report causes frustration, both to the reader and writer. The reader is ill-informed and the writer has not achieved his aims.

The following are the general requirements for a good report:

3.1 The principles of an effective report

An effective report must adhere to the following principles:

Accuracy

To be accurate means to be exact and precise. In a report accuracy means that the report is an exact, precise and reliable rendering of the occurrence, condition or situation. All the knowledge the reporter possesses of the subject must be included, without, wittingly or unwittingly, omitting relevant or adding irrelevant particulars.

To ensure accuracy, one must distinguish between each of the following types of information:

- ◆ facts and hearsay;
- ◆ facts and deductions;
- ◆ facts and opinions; and

Having distinguished between the mentioned types of information, does not mean that one or more must be omitted. On the contrary, the reporter must submit ALL the information. Should certain information on a report be hearsay, opinions or deductions, the reporter should clearly state this fact for the reader's information.

- ◆ The meaning of words.

REMEMBER.....Facts

A fact is something which actually exists and cannot be changed. For a reporter to state the facts concerning any occurrence, condition or situation he must have observed these facts himself by means of one of his five sense organs. The reporter may, however, possess other factual information which was not perceived by him. Such information must also be included in the report, but in such a way that the reader will know that it is not a fact which has been observed by the reporter himself.

REMEMBER.....Hearsay

For the purpose of reporting, hearsay is all other information, being fact or fiction, which the reporter did not observe himself. Such information must not be withheld. The reader must, however, know that it is hearsay and that the reporter cannot vouch for the truth or correctness thereof.

REMEMBER.....Deductions

A deduction is the conclusion drawn by a person by means of his reasoning. It must be grounded on facts and must be logical. Different persons often make different deductions from the same facts. Enough facts must be submitted to enable the reader to make his own deductions. This must be included in the commentary section of the report and be indicated as such, so that the reader does not confuse the deductions with the facts.

REMEMBER.....Opinions

An opinion is a point of view or conviction which a person forms regarding an incident. To carry any weight, an opinion should be based on facts, although this is not essential. The opinion of a reporter is of value to the reader provided the reader is in possession of all the facts. He will then form his own opinion which will often coincide with that of the reporter. The reporter must, however, clearly indicate that it is his opinion in order not to mislead his reader. Opinions are, therefore, usually raised in the commentary part of the report.

REMEMBER.....The meaning of words

In the first place the reporter should know the meaning of words before he uses them.

Secondly, it must be kept in mind that one word often has more than one meaning.

The context in which a word is used will determine the significance of the word to the reader. By using a word in the right context the reporter can ensure that he conveys exactly what he intends to convey to the reader.

EXAMPLE:

As an example, we take the case of a person that does not work. We can call him unemployed or a loafer. If he is unemployed, we do not think ill of him, since it is possible that he does not have work due to circumstances. If however, we call him a loafer, immediately there is an unpleasant connotation.

TAKE NOTE

To most people it indicates that this person does not WANT to work although he can find employment. The word "unemployed" causes sympathy whilst "loafer" causes antagonism. Whichever word is to be used will depend on what the reporter wants to convey to his reader.

The reporter must guard against using a word with an ambiguous meaning or making ambiguous statements. Can the reader be blamed if he interprets it incorrectly?

Completeness

A report can only be complete if it contains every fact that is applicable to the event. Accuracy of a report can be established by asking the following questions:

WHO

- ◆ Who committed the offence?
- ◆ Who is the witness?
- ◆ Who is the victim (complainant)?
- ◆ Who reported the case?
- ◆ Who searched the scene of the crime?
- ◆ Who found, marked and dispatched evidence?
- ◆ Who might have had a motive to commit the offence?
- ◆ Who discovered the crime scene?

WHAT

- ◆ What precisely took place? (Describe the events in accurate detail).
- ◆ What object was used to commit the crime?
- ◆ What was done to protect the scene of the crime?
- ◆ What was done to obtain information?
- ◆ What was stolen?

WHERE

- ◆ Provide a complete description of the place, including the name of the building, the street name and number, and the name of the suburb.
- ◆ Where was the complainant?
- ◆ Where was the body of the deceased found?
- ◆ Where were the clues found?
- ◆ Where did the witness stand / sit, etc when the crime took place?

WHEN

- ◆ Note the date and time of the incident.
- ◆ When was it reported?
- ◆ When did the police arrive at the scene?
- ◆ When was the crime discovered?

WHY

- ♦ Describe in detail the events that led up to the incident.
- ♦ Why is a certain person a suspect in the case?
- ♦ Why were certain items stolen, and others not?
- ♦ Why was the deceased murdered?

HOW

- ♦ Describe in detail the actions that constitute the offence.
- ♦ How was the crime committed?
- ♦ How did the person who discovered the crime scene approach the crime scene?

Conciseness

The word "concise" means brief, yet comprehensible, and to the point. In a report "concise", therefore, means that everything that has to be said is said in as few words as possible without omitting essential or relevant particulars.

Objectivity

To be objective means one must not be influenced by one's own emotions or prejudices. Personal feelings and prejudices of the reporter must not be reflected in the report.

The reader can easily be misled by the contents of a report if the reporter's reasoning was dominated by his emotions whilst writing the report.

Comprehensibility

If a report can be read and understood easily by reading it once only, and if the reader can find a specific portion in which he is particularly interested without difficulty, the report will be comprehensive. From the reporter this requires:

- ♦ Good language usage,
- ♦ Proper construction of sentences,
- ♦ Division into paragraphs and sub-paragraphs, and the use of headings and sub-headings where lengthy reports are concerned.

The use of correct punctuation marks plays an important part in avoiding ambiguity. A comma in a wrong place can change the entire context. A missing punctuation mark complicates comprehension. Avoid using long sentences as this makes the report difficult to understand, compels one to read the passage more than once and also causes punctuation errors.

Honesty

To be honest in reporting means to convey the truth without distorting the facts. It has already been said that the reporter must submit ALL the information and knowledge concerning the subject matter to the reader. This also means that unfavorable information, either to the reader, the writer or anybody else, may not be withheld. Withholding such information could cause an incorrect decision being made.

4. Guidelines regarding writing a report

Preparation. Before putting pen to paper on a statement form you should have already obtained sufficient detail from your deponent to ensure that you know what you are going to write. Do not forget that wherever you decide to write the statement, it is far better to choose the place where you will have the least interruptions.

5. Composition of a report

A report consists of five parts

- ♦ The heading
- ♦ The body
- ♦ Comments
- ♦ Recommendations
- ♦ Conclusion

The three parts are so interwoven that a definite line cannot be drawn to separate the one from the other.

5.1 The heading

The heading begins on the left hand side of the page after two lines have been skipped below the address of the addressee. It is written in capital letters, is not underlined, and does not end with a full stop.

The heading is a concise summary of the contents of the report. It must contain sufficient information so that no doubt will exist as to the nature of the contents, the subject can easily be identified, it will not be confused with other correspondence, however closely related.

The following requirements are applicable:

- ♦ The heading must contain the subject.
- ♦ The date and place of the occurrence must be mentioned, if applicable.
- ♦ The time of the incident, or the period in which the incident took place, must be stated, if applicable.
- ♦ If any person is involved, he or she must be identified.

The body

One line must be left open below the heading before commencing with the first paragraph.

Paragraphs must be in block form and each paragraph must be numbered in Arabic numerals and a unit, starting with "1". The number must be continuous up to the end of the report. If chapters are used and chapter 1 ends with paragraph 12, chapter 2 will start with paragraph 13.

When it is necessary to subdivide the paragraphs, the following method can be used:

1.
.....
- 1.1
.....
.....
2.
.....
.....

In memoranda, in which different aspects of a matter are dealt with, the division of these aspects into chapters for the use of concise sub-headings is necessary and it is indicated by means of capital Roman numerals, viz Chapter I, II and III.

The contents of a report must be concise and written in the first person. A simple, straightforward and direct style is to be cultivated.

Although exceptions may sometimes be necessary, only one subject is to be dealt with in a particular report.

Reports can sometimes be lengthy. In such instances it is necessary to make use of headings and sub-headings. It is also necessary to give a brief summary of the contents at the beginning of the report, to clearly outline the nature of the contents to the reader. These particulars should, preferably, be given in the first paragraph.

Facts should be recorded in a chronological order, since it is most confusing when the time order of events is mixed up, impairing the requirements of comprehensive-ness.

Annexure and appendixes which are attached to reports must be numbered. Annexure are numbered with capital letters of the alphabet and appendixes with Arabic numerals, i.e. Annexure "A", "B" and Appendix 1 and 2.

The difference between an annexure and an appendix is.....

An annexure is a document without which the report would be incomplete, for example Annexure to an indictment.

An appendix is an explanatory document with which the original writing would, in any case, be complete viz a map of the surroundings.

Comment

Commentary is sometimes superfluous but often necessary. After reading the contents of the report, the reader may raise the following questions:

- ◆ How authentic and reliable is the informer as far as hearsay facts are concerned?
- ◆ What is the background of the person involved?
- ◆ Is there any connection between the present case and a previous incident?
- ◆ Can anyone else cast any light on the subject?
- ◆ Is there any other information which could not be included in the report, but could help to clarify the situation?

The reporter was on the scene and investigated the matter. It is just logical that he will possess information that may be relevant but cannot be stated as a fact. It is only fair to supply the reader with all the information, since he often has to make a decision which might have far-reaching consequences to himself or someone else. This additional information may be conveyed under the heading "COMMENT".

It is necessary that the heading "COMMENT" be used. To the reader it is immediately clear that the reporter has given all the factual evidence he possesses.

This part of the report is also the most suitable place for the writer to give his opinion or to draw attention to his own deductions.

At the same time, the reporter can mention the steps he has taken pending instructions from his superior.

The "Comment" part forms one paragraph only, with different sub-paragraphs if necessary.

Recommendations

The purpose of a recommendation is to convince the reader to take a decision which the reporter deems the most suitable under the prevailing circumstances.

In almost every report it is necessary for the reporter to make a recommendation, even if it was not requested for by the authority ordering the report to be submitted.

When a recommendation is made, care must be taken not to use words which could be interpreted as an order or instruction.

It is useless to submit an unmotivated recommendation. Such a recommendation is meaningless and carries no weight. Should the writer recommend a specific action without indicating why he has considered it as the most suitable solution, he has missed his goal.

The conclusion

The report is concluded with the signature of the writer on the left-hand side of the page.

Due to signatures often being illegible, the initials and surnames of the signatory must be typed.

Should the writer fill a designated post, it must be indicated in capital letters below his initials and surnames.

6. Feedback

The report are used to provide feedback to the following key role players.

- ◆ Management
- ◆ The client
- ◆ Security personnel
- ◆ Emergency services

Please take note: It is extremely important to provide feedback on all the facts and methods that have been used to defuse /handle the conflict situation.

The situation can also be recorded in an incident report or the site Occurrence book.

Red inscription is only an explanation and should not be included in your report.

(Own address)

SL LEGAU
SECURITY TEAM LEADER
EMI MINING CC.
LOSS CONTROL DEPARTMENT

(Date must always be included) 12/05/2005

(Report Addresses to)

MR V KHETANI
REGIONAL MANAGER
EMI MINING CC.
PARKTOWN

An address always contains the following detail:

1. Name and surname
2. Title and/or Rank
3. Place, area or company where employed

HEADING:

Each report must have a heading that gives a brief descriptive explanation of the report that is to follow. A heading normally does not consist of more than 3 to 4 words that can be supported by a date, serial no., etc. Following are a few examples:

- ♦ Fence irregularity
- ♦ Keys left in vehicle
- ♦ Defective access control system
- ♦ Hole in roof

INTRODUCTION

Before starting to write the report it will be necessary to give basic background information as to the relevance of the report that is to follow. Such an introduction may even consist of a reference to a previous report. It may sometimes be necessary to give a brief explanation on the action that is to be reported. Following is an example:

A report was submitted by myself on 21/08/96 in which I indicated that there is a hole in the fence at the northern side of the factory. Similar reports was lodged on 27/08/96, 06/09/96. Whilst patrolling the fence on 21/09/96 I found that the it has as yet not been repaired, etc.

BODY

A heading is also to be used to indicate that the actual report is going to follow. The writer must ensure that all the information and detail previously explained in this module is contained in the report. It is sometimes necessary to include a possible solution as to what is expected.

CONSEQUENCES/MOTIVATION

Following the description of the incident it may sometimes be necessary to express your concern as to what the consequences of such an incident may be. This part of the request may also include a motivation with regards to the report that was submitted. In general it can be said that this section is the part where you are going to support whatever was reported and/or suggested.

SUMMARY

All the facts are briefly summarised and the writer normally asks for feedback, follow up, etc, in this section.

ENDING

On completion of any report the writer will write down his name, title or rank and sign the report which will automatically authenticate and validate the report, e.g.

FJH Zungu
SECURITY SUPERVISOR (EFG BOXING)

[illegible]

WORDS/ACRONYMS	EXPLANATION OF ACRONYMS
ASSESSMENT	“A structured process of gathering evidence and making judgments about an individual’s performance in relation to registered national standards and qualifications”
ASSESSMENT CRITERIA	It describe the evidence that is needed to show that the learner has demonstrated the outcome correctly. A list of evidence to be supplied by the candidate as proof of his / her ability to integrate all of the competencies listed earlier in the standard.
COMPETENCE	Competence is the ability to do certain things in a range of different environments with knowledge and understanding about what is being done and the effect this has on others. It includes Knowledge, skills, attitudes, values and ethics.
CREDIT	Each unit standard is worth a number of credits which gives an indication of the size and scope of the unit standard, the standard is worth. (1 credit = 10 notional hours of learning)
CRITICAL CROSSFIELD OUTCOMES	critical cross field outcomes is to direct educational activities towards development of the learners within a social and economic environment.
EMBEDDED KNOWLEDGE	Body of theory essential for understanding and applying the standard. Principles, methods and techniques that would underpin good practice of this unit standard.
EVIDENCE	Evidence is a set of information or observations that provides proof of the learner’s competence.
FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT	Aims to assist the learner to identify any knowledge/skills gaps when demonstrating his/her current competence. Diagnostic assessment supports learning and progress of the learner.
INTEGRATED ASSESSMENT	Integrated assessment refers to: • assessing a number of outcomes together • assessing a number of assessment criteria together • assessing a number of unit standards together • using a combination of assessment methods and instruments for an outcome/s • collecting naturally occurring evidence in the workplace • Acquiring evidence from other sources such as supervisor’s reports, testimonials, portfolio of work previously done, logbooks, journals etc.
LEARNING ASSUMED TO BE IN PLACE	Building blocks (knowledge, skill and understanding) assumed to be in place
LEARNING PROGRAM	A “learning program is a set of learning activities in which the learner will be involved in working towards the achievement of one or more outcomes.
LEVEL	Each unit standard is registered on the NQF at a particular level based on the complexity of the outcomes and stringency of the standards.
NQF	National Qualifications Framework
RANGE STATEMENTS	The range statements indicate detailed requirements of the assessment criteria.

RE-ASSESSMENT	• The same method and instrument may be used, but, the task and materials should be different • The task and materials should, however, be of the same complexity and level as the previous ones. • In case the methods and instruments are changed it must be ensured that they are appropriate for the outcomes specified.
RPL ASSESSMENT	RPL is a way of recognizing what individuals already know and can do. The basic premise underlying it is that people, especially mature adults, learn many things inside and outside the formal structures of education and training and that irrespective of where, how and when learning was acquired, subject to assessment, it can be worthy of recognition and credit.
RPL	Recognition of prior learning
SASSETA	Safety & security sector education and training authority.
SAQA	SOUTH AFRICAN QUALIFICATION AUTHORITY
SPECIFIC OUTCOMES	An outcome is a statement that describes the required competency that must be demonstrated by the learner on successful completion of a training intervention. Key performance areas in the standard are given, the focus is not only on current competence, but also on future competence in this standard.
SUMMATIVE ASSESSMENT	Assessment used to record the level of competence achieved by a learner over a period of time, e.g. at the end of a program, term or year.
QUALIFICATIONS	Represent a planned combination of learning outcomes which has a defined purpose and intended to provide learners with applied competence and a basis for further learning
UNIT STANDARDS	the “building blocks” of qualifications. All qualifications are plotted on the National Qualifications Framework (NQF). “A statement of the outcomes that the learner must achieve to earn credit. Standards are nationally agreed and internationally comparable.”

Abrie, S. Bezuidenhout. M. 2006. Security Practice. UNISA: Institute for Criminological Sciences.

POA Publishing. 2003. Asset Protection and Security Management Handbook. Washington: Auerbach Publications.

Berg, J. 2006. The Accountability of South Africa's Private Security Industry. UCT: Institute for Criminological Sciences. Available: <http://www.asjp.co.za/upload/File/Berg%20OSF.pdf>

Brislin, R. F. 1995. The Effective Security Officers Training Manual. Newton: Butterworth-Heinemann.

Mackenzie, G. Mc Loughlin, T. Twiss, G. 1983. The Security Handbook. Printpak (Cape) Ltd.

Vogel, T. E. 1981. Protective Security. King & Wilks: The South African Institute of Security.

Identify, handle and defuse security related conflict

SAQA US ID		UNIT STANDARD TITLE
11505		Identify, handle and defuse security related conflict
ORIGINATOR		REGISTERING PROVIDER
SGB Security
FIELD		SUBFIELD
Field 08 - Law, Military Science and Security		Safety in Society
ABET BAND	UNIT STANDARD TYPE	NQF LEVEL	CREDITS
Undefined	Regular	Level 4	12
REGISTRATION STATUS	REGISTRATION START DATE	REGISTRATION END DATE	SAQA DECISION NUMBER
Reregistered	2005-11-01	2008-11-01	SAQA 0160/05
LAST DATE FOR ENROLMENT		LAST DATE FOR ACHIEVEMENT
2009-11-01		2012-11-01

PURPOSE OF THE UNIT STANDARD

This unit standard is for personnel to identify, handle and defuse security related conflict between members of the public and security personnel with minimum use of force in the workplace.

Benefit for society of this unit standard is that the person who completes this will contribute to safety in society.

A person credited with this unit standard will be able to:

- Identify conflict situations.
- Handle and defuse conflict situation.
- Provide feedback on conflict situation.

LEARNING ASSUMED TO BE IN PLACE AND RECOGNITION OF PRIOR LEARNING

The following knowledge, skills, attitude and/or equivalent:

- A knowledge, comprehension and application of language and mathematics NQF 03

UNIT STANDARD RANGE

This unit standard applies to persons who competently identify, handle and defuse security related conflict between members of the public and security personnel with minimum use of force in the workplace.

UNIT STANDARD OUTCOME HEADER

null

Specific Outcomes and Assessment Criteria:SPECIFIC OUTCOME 1

Identify conflict situations.

ASSESSMENT CRITERIAASSESSMENT CRITERION 1

1. Conflict situation is prioritised.

ASSESSMENT CRITERION 2

2. Conflict assessment and techniques are used to establish possible solutions.

ASSESSMENT CRITERION 3

3. Conflict situations and/or persons reported to the appropriate personnel according to workplace instructions.

SPECIFIC OUTCOME 2

Handle and defuse conflict situation.

ASSESSMENT CRITERIAASSESSMENT CRITERION 1

1. Person(s) involved are dealt with in a manner appropriate to the situation and according to workplace procedures.

ASSESSMENT CRITERION 2

2. Appropriate assistance is sought.

ASSESSMENT CRITERION 3

3. Minimum force options, inclusive of verbal and physical, are considered in resolving conflict.

ASSESSMENT CRITERION 4

4. Interaction is terminated tactfully when the situation is defused.

SPECIFIC OUTCOME 3

Provide feedback on conflict situation.

OUTCOME RANGE

Work procedures must include:

- Rules, regulations and procedures

Conflict situations must include:

- Difficult people.
- Intoxicated
- Drugs/alcohol
- Aggressive
- Enraged.

Handle and defuse must include:

- Ejection of people from premises
- Physical restraint.
- Verbal persuasion.

Relevant role players must include:

- Management
- Client
- Security personnel
- Emergency services
- Official & statutory Institutions personnel.

ASSESSMENT CRITERIAASSESSMENT CRITERION 1

1. Written report on incident is completed in accordance with workplace procedures.

ASSESSMENT CRITERION 2

2. Report is submitted to relevant role players.

ASSESSMENT CRITERION 3

3. Follow up to ensure conflict is defused according to workplace procedures.

UNIT STANDARD ACCREDITATION AND MODERATION OPTIONS

1. Anyone assessing a learner against this unit standard must be registered as an assessor with the POSLEC SETA ETQA/and any other body with whom a MOU was entered into.
2. Any institution offering learning that will enable achievement of this unit standard must be accredited as a provider through the POSLEC SETA ETQA/and any other body with whom a MOU was entered into by SAQA.
3. Moderation of assessment will be overseen by the POSLEC SETA ETQA/and any other body with whom a MOU was entered into according to the moderation guidelines in the relevant qualification and the POSLEC SETA ETQA/and any other body with whom a MOU was entered into, procedures.

UNIT STANDARD ESSENTIAL EMBEDDED KNOWLEDGE

Refer to the Specific Outcomes and the Assessment Criteria contained in this unit standard and specifically:

- A comprehensive understanding of communication and body language skills.
- A comprehensive understanding of relevant legislation.
- A comprehensive understanding of verbal and written reports.
- A comprehensive understanding of client/public relations

Critical Cross-field Outcomes (CCFO):UNIT STANDARD CCFO IDENTIFYING

Identify and solve problems related to security conflict situations.

UNIT STANDARD CCFO ORGANISING

Organise oneself and one`s activities so that interaction is terminated tactfully when the situation is defused.

UNIT STANDARD CCFO COLLECTING

Collect, analyse, organise and critically evaluate information related to the conflict situation in order to determine the most appropriate manner of dealing with the situation.

UNIT STANDARD CCFO COMMUNICATING

Communicate effectively when dealing with relevant role players.

UNIT STANDARD CCFO DEMONSTRATING

Understand the world as a set of related systems in that clear and precise feedback on a situation is obtained from all relevant role players.

UNIT STANDARD NOTES

Supplementary Information:

Specified Requirements

Specified requirements include legal and legislative specific requirements and are Legal

- Applicable sections of the Firearms Control Act 60/2000.

- Applicable sections of the Criminal Procedures Act, 1977.
- Applicable sections of the Regulation of Gatherings Act, 1993.
- Applicable sections of the Domestic Violence Act, 1993.
- Applicable sections of the Child Protection Act, 1993.
- Applicable sections of the Dangerous Weapons Act.
- Private defence
- Moral & humanitarian considerations (proportionality)
- Continuum of force.
- Vicarious liability
- Civil liability

Context Specific

- Training provider user manuals
- Specifications, agreements, policies and procedures

Resources required for Assessment:

- Safety equipment and protective uniform/clothes
- Communications equipment.
- Necessary administrative and stationary issue.
- Criterion referenced assessment instructions/tools.
- A suitable venue: workplace and classroom.

QUALIFICATIONS UTILISING THIS UNIT STANDARD:

	ID	QUALIFICATION TITLE	LEVEL	STATUS	END DATE
Core	58577	National Certificate: General Security Practices	Level 3	Registered	2010-11-28
Core	22491	Further Education and Training Certificate: Specialist Security Practices	Level 4	Passed the End Date - Status was "Reregistered"	2006-11-16
Core	57713	Further Education and Training Certificate: Specialist Security Practices	Level 4	Registered	2009-11-16
Elective	22490	National Certificate: General Security Practices	Level 3	Passed the End Date - Status was "Reregistered"	2007-11-28
Elective	22110	National Certificate: Electronic Security Practices	Level 4	Registered	2008-02-09