It is 20:00 on Sunday 12 January 2002. It is raining and cold. You are working nightshift in the control room, when Mrs. Meriam Ndlovu knocks on the door of the control room. Her face is bleeding and she is crying. You offer to assist her and open the medical first aid kit. You manage to stop the bleeding and when she stops crying, she tells you her story.

She resides at 54 Bloomdale Crescent in Pretoria. Her cellphone number is 044 322 0101. She has no home phone number. She works at Ken's Flat Chickens and fast foods. I.D. no 230101 5289 086. She was working late and was walking to the taxi-rank. It is raining and it was dark. She had to walk alone as all of her colleagues were walking in the opposite direction. It is approximately 1 kilometer to the taxi-rank from her place of work. She was afraid that she would miss the last taxi and took a short-cut through an open veld. Suddenly, three men showed up in front of her and blocked her path. She immediately turned around and was screaming while she tried to run away. The men caught up with her and forced her into the dark bushes. The men forcefully stole her wallet, cell-phone and purse. She is in shock and struggles to tell you the story as she battles to breath. She managed to kick the one man, and managed to run to the main road, the name of the street is Poggenpoel street. She tried to stop some vehicles and as the men saw the vehicles slowing down, they ran away into the bush. No vehicles stopped and she managed to walk to the control room.

She explains that she could not identify the suspects as it was dark and wet. She does remember that one of the men called the other one Sipho. She said that she has no money to get home.

You notice that Mrs. Ndlovu has several cuts on her face and arms. She also appears to have a stab wound just above her right hip. You have notified the local ambulance and as they arrive, she informs you that her cell-phone is a pink Nokia 2020.
